DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Staup Farm House is located on Water Station Run Road near Lonaconing, Allegany County.

The Staup Farm House is a two story, three bay wide, rectangular, frame building. The house, which has since been covered with insul brick, rests on a low stone foundation. The roof is gabled with a boxed cornice and returns and is covered with replaced asphalt shingles. Windows in the structure, some of which have been replaced, are double hung wooden sash frames with a combination of one over one and two over two lights. The majority of windows have cornices and plain trim. The main entrance is located on the southwest side and features a vertically paneled door. Both the main entrance and a second rear entrance are covered by shed-roof porches, one of which has been enclosed.

Located to the north of the main house is a large barn with a cut stone foundation and a mortise and tenon frame. Both the house and the barn are in fair condition and retain much of their original fabric and appearance.

BUILDER/ARCHITECT

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The Staup Farm House was probably constructed in the latter half of the 19th century (ca. 1875) by a member of the Staup family.¹ According to the present owners, there is some evidence that the present structure may have been constructed on an earlier foundation. The property was originally patented to one William McMahon in 1799,² and it is possible that the Stuap family destroyed the earlier structure and built a more "modern" house on the original foundation.

Although the house has been altered somewhat, it is fairly representative of rural architecture in Allegany County during the latter half of the 19th century.
